

Guidelines for Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL)

The Spring Term 2024-25 at Lovely Professional University will usher in an EDU-REVOLUTION, bringing a transformative shift in education. A key initiative in this revolution is the Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL), offering students the opportunity to request exemptions from certain courses and attendance requirements through an online interface. The objective of this initiative is to acknowledge and recognize the skill set of students, providing them with the opportunity to leverage their abilities. For instance, if a student demonstrates proficiency in areas such as English Language or Programming, they may apply for Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) in the corresponding course, following the process outlined below:

Stage 1: Before the start of each term, students who believe they already possess the required knowledge or skills in a course registered to him/her in upcoming term, can request a relaxation from the course and attendance via an online interface.

Stage 2: Upon approval of the request, to qualify for RPL course equivalence and attendance relaxation the student must take an RPL

a) For the current semester (24252), the student must take the RPL assessment within 7 days of the term's start.

b) For subsequent sessions (25261 onwards), students must complete the RPL assessment within 21 days from the start of the term.

A minimum grade of B+ (7 GPA) is required to be earned for the exemption.

Syllabus and RPL Examination: The RPL examination will closely resemble the End Term Examination for the selected course, with the course content taught in the course serving as the syllabus.

Stage 3: Upon successful qualification:

The grade earned by the student in the RPL examination will be directly reflected in the final DMC. Students achieving the minimum required grade of B+ (7 GPA) will be exempted from attendance, continuous assessments (CA), and the final examination for the course.

If a student does not meet the minimum grade requirement, they will be required to attend classes. Additionally, students who feel their test score is unsatisfactory may choose to attend classes.

NOTE: A student can select only one course in a term under Recognition of prior learning (RPL). Exemptions related to certifications from NPTEL Courses, MOOCs, or other certifications are not covered under this policy. For further clarification on exemptions related to certifications, please refer to the 'Guidelines on Course Mapping and Relaxation for NPTEL/MOOCs/Certification.' Apart from that, students must attend all classes until the official declaration of the RPL examination results."
